

Marine Corps Logistics Command Conducts 101 Critical Days of Summer Safety Stand-Down

By Robin Berry | ODO | Marine Corps Logistics Command | May 24, 2016

Albany, GA – Marine Corps Logistics Command (LOGCOM) held its annual 101 Critical Days of Summer Safety Stand-Down at LOGCOM Headquarters on May 24-25, 2016.

LOGCOM's Installations, Environmental and Safety (IE&S) Office hosted the event to encourage all employees to be safety conscience while enjoying the many summer activities over the next three months. The 101 Critical Days of Summer begins on Memorial Day weekend and continues through Labor Day.

Each year, as part of this stand-down, LOGCOM employees are reminded how easily accidents can occur if you are not fully aware of your surroundings or become distracted. With all of the fun summer activities available, safety awareness can help to protect you and your family from harm.

Safety topics covered during the stand-down included:

- Heat Injury Prevention
- Boating Tips
- Fire Safety
- Motorcycle/ATV Safety
- Fireworks Safety
- Insect Bites and Venomous Snakes Awareness

LOGCOM employees attend The 101 Critical Days of Summer Safety Stand Down on 24 May 2016.

According to Mr. Ken Sator, Director, IE&S, “this event, required by Headquarters Marine Corps, is intended to put the workforce in the right frame of mind and to prepare for the 101 Critical Days of Summer ahead. Whether on or off the job, it is the mission of IE&S to ensure the workforce is as healthy and as safe as possible at all times.”
